

Announcing The Historic 1st Dead Poets Bash of New York
18th Bash on the Dead Poets Grand Tour 2010
Saturday, May 22nd

The public is heartily invited to take part in the historic 1st Dead Poets Bash of New York, which will take place at the graves of 4 famous New York poets, starting at 3 PM, at the grave of Henry Dumas, at the Long Island National Cemetery. Those wishing to read a poem from one of New York's many past poets should sign-up on the NY Dead Poets Blog:

http://deadpoets.typepad.com/dead_poets_of_new_york/

Henry Dumas - 3 to 4 PM

Long Island National Cemetery
2040 Wellwood Avenue, Farmingdale, NY 11735-1211

Reading:

Take the Grand Central Parkway eastbound to Exit 10E - Long Island Expressway 495. Travel the Long Island Expressway to Exit 49 South. After exiting, stay on the South Service Road to the 3rd set of traffic lights. This will be Pinelawn Road. Turn right onto Pinelawn Road, but be aware that Pinelawn Road changes its name to Wellwood Avenue on your way to the cemetery. Long Island National Cemetery is located on the left side of the roadway at 2040 Wellwood Avenue.

Walt Whitman Birthplace - 4:30 to 5 PM

246 Old Walt Whitman Road, Huntington, NY

Reading:

Jupiter Hammond - 5:30 – 6 PM

Lloyd Lane and Lloyd Harbor Road,
Lloyd Harbor, New York

Reading: Kurt Boone

Follow Route 25A into Huntington, turn north on West Neck Road (opposite library), follow West Neck Road into the Village of Lloyd Harbor and across the causeway (water on both sides) to Lloyd Neck. This road turns east at the Neck and follows the south shore. Lloyd Manor is located at the intersection of this shore and Lloyd Lane, (one-half mile east).

http://www.splia.org/hist_lloyd.htm

William Cullen Bryant - 6:45 PM

Roslyn Cemetery, Roslyn LI.
NY 25A

Reading "Thanatopsis"

Reading:

(Sunset 8 PM)